COUNTY SCHOOL NEWS

The dreams of the progressive citizens of the Middle Ground school district are becoming a realization at last. The foundation for the new and modern brick school house is being laid. This building when completed will be one of the best in Southeast Georgia. Ten class rooms, a large auditorium and two utility rooms suitable for library and laboratory use. Steel truss will support the plastering which will prevent plaster cracks and which will make the building almost fireproof. The Johns Manville asbestos shingles of the best grade will be used for roofing which is a fireproof roofing material that will last a lifetime. Middle Ground district was the first rural district in the county to vote a local tax for the support of the district school. For a long time Middle Ground school was the best rural school in this county. With this new plant and the enlarged district, Middle Ground will surpass any other rural school to the limit or will take and hold first place as a rural school. The citizens of Middle Ground school district know the meaning of co-operation and the strength of mass formation. Watch Middle Ground come to the front ranks again.

The Warnock teachers' training department of the Georgia Normal School is off to a good start on the 1928-29 term. Enrollment is good and a faculty of teachers who know how to put things over with a bang. The Junior school that wins over the Warnock this year will have to hustle.

Community school discussions are jealous and detrimental to the welfare of a school district. We plead for a spirit of tolerance and co-operation for the sake of the children. Schools to be effective must have the hearty support of the entire citizenry. One or two contented kids can block a whole community and place the citizenry in a bad light before the public at large. Bulloch county as a whole possibly has a more progressive citizenry than any county in Georgia. Our progressive citizens have shown this much. Now is the time for united effort, or we will slow down in our essential development. We have too much at stake to falter or even lag in our efforts to carry on.

It is our desire to have an active P. T. A. in every school district in Bulloch county during the school year of 1928-29. In most of the schools such an organization is functioning now. Should your school not have an organization of this kind, help will be furnished you to put on a P. T. A. and to outline the scope of work to be done for the good of the school and community by this association. Teachers who are not able to get in close touch with fathers and mothers have a harder job to put over a real effective school.

During the school year of 1927-28 Bulloch county teachers became members of the Georgia Education Association 100%. We shall expect every member of the county faculty to join or re-join the present school year. We want another million dollars for the support of our consolidated schools, and by the help of the G. E. A. we hope to secure this much in extra funds from the Georgia legislature in 1929. It will not mean a penny of added taxes. It will come from taxes already imposed which go to the support of less worthy causes than the common schools of our state. What school of the county will be the first to enroll a 100% in the G. E. A.? The magazine you get with your membership is worth more than the fee required for membership.

If I were a tenant farmer and had children to send to school, I'd move to a school district that has a good school. That is exactly what the best tenant farmers will do in the near future. They cannot be blamed for that. About all that tenant farmers may hope to give their children is an education and the only hope of even this is to be so located that their children can attend a modern school. Sections without a good consolidated school will find that they have slept over their rights by not establishing a good school for the good of the community as a whole.

We wonder how soon our teachers will realize that window shades are to be used only for the purpose of keeping out direct sun rays and not for the purpose of excluding light at the expense of the eyes of the children. We often find shades pulled all the way down and rooms so darkened that it is difficult for the children to see how to read. What do you suppose your state school supervisors would say, were they to find your rooms in darkness as the result of fully drawn curtains or shades? Better no shades at all than to use them to exclude essential light. Let the light in.

I know of some teachers whose anxiety to teach is so wonderful that they wish to have the fathers and mothers visit and observe how very tactful and efficient they are. Suppose you take time to visit your school and see how well the teacher who has your child in charge does her teaching. Some are inspiring. No wonder children love to go to school when they have real, able and interesting teachers to lead them on. I had occasion to observe some excellent teaching in the Brooklet high school recently that made me feel happy to realize that there is no lack of efficiency there. And in the Stillton school one will be impressed with the thorough and interesting methods used by which to inspire and encourage the children who are there for business. To watch our rapid development in the effectiveness of the teaching force as compared to very recent years is most encouraging. Our teachers are teaching now. Let us have our children do some studying and you will be satisfied with the school when the year has ended. Good schools cost a good deal but not nearly so much as poor schools.

Teachers, children! Protect your good school house and your good school desks. It is a shame to damage your school property or to fail to keep it clean and in order. It is a careless teacher who will allow an accumulation of trash on her floor. Any pupil who is willing to sit in a mass of trash has a new lesson to learn. One scrap of paper or one speck of trash on a floor is too much. The only excuse for a dirty, trashy and untidy class room is a clean, well kept one. Which kind are you going to keep?

A GRAND COMEDY

THURSDAY and FRIDAY, October 18 and 19

"SPEEDY"

With Harold Lloyd and Ann Christy; written and directed by Harold Lloyd. Here he comes—the king of comedy—at his best. Lloyd comes to you right off the bat. Hot laughs to the out-field. Don't close your eyes. "Speedy" is here. Harold Lloyd is the one-man battery for perpetual laugh motion. The great laugh in store for all those who see the picture, is the highly amusing sight of a horse-drawn street car traveling through the heavily congested streets of New York. Take heed, there's need for speed, if you'd catch on with "Speedy." "MEMORIES," another Colorat Classic. The classiest short subject shown here in years.

A ROMANTIC DRAMA

SATURDAY and MONDAY, October 20 and 22

"THE ROAD TO ROMANCE"

With Ramon Novarro and Marceline Day; adapted from the novel, "Romance," by Joseph Conrad; directed by John S. Robertson. Don't fail to see "The Road to Romance." A lusty, roaring picture of love, thrills, laughter in the days when pirates were scouring the seas. The great star of "Ben Hur" now gives the screen another outstanding performance. There's sea fights, heart raids and thrills galore. There's a clash of swords, the click of glasses, songs of the sea which help to make "The Road to Romance" one of the most colorful romantic melodramas of the year. Why shouldn't "The Road to Romance" be romantic? Ramon Novarro is the gay Spanish cavalier. "THE BULL FIGHT" is a cool comedy.

A MELODRAMA

YOUTH OF THE WORLD SERVE A GREAT CAUSE

BOYS AND GIRLS IN SCHOOL COMPRISE OPPATIST CHILDREN'S LEAGUE.

In the United States there are 6,500,000 school children, in elementary and high school grades, who are members of the greatest children's league in the world.

It is a children's organization which enrolls a globe. It is actively organized in forty-eight countries.

In the past year 706,000 or 12 per cent. more boys and girls have joined the American Junior Red Cross. On the basis of figures taken from the Federal Bureau of Education for 1926, thirty per cent. of the school enrollment of the United States and its territories are now members of the American Junior Red Cross.

These are three aspects to the complete education of a good citizen in his home community, in the nation where he lived, and internationally. The Junior Red Cross, in its triple program seeks to develop a good citizen in this three-fold aspect. It provides definitely for enabling each pupil to participate in doing needed and important things in the community where he lives, in the nation where he is growing up to be a citizen, and in the great family of nations.

Canada had the honor to be the birthplace of the Junior Red Cross. And while leading educators of the world see in this organized league of children one of the greatest factors insuring world peace, through the friendly understanding of foreign lands and peoples which their world-wide association through correspondence affords them—the Junior Red Cross was a direct product of war. The desire of the children in the Province of Quebec, Canada, to aid somehow in the fierce struggle started in 1914, brought about the organization of a Junior group by the Red Cross. New South Wales followed, and in 1916 and 1917, after many letters had been received by the American Red Cross, a proclamation issued by President Wilson created the Junior Red Cross, and soon eleven million school children, guided by their teachers, were at work endeavoring in every way to lend their aid where needed in the war work.

How has this three-fold program of Junior Red Cross been carried out in the years since the Armistice? It is apparent that it has gained tremendous popularity with children and teachers alike, as evidenced by its huge membership in one nation alone.

In the grade school room it has electrified the geography lesson through the international exchange of letters, portfolios, dolls and small articles peculiar to the nations in which they were made.

In the high school rooms it has lent color and meaning to the lessons in foreign languages. History has become a living study through the understanding the children have gained in exchange of correspondence with other countries.

Letters and portfolios come to American schools from Italy, India, South Africa, Alaska, Siam, to mention a few world boundaries. New nations—Latvia, Czechoslovakia, Jugoslavia; Estonia, Lithuania participate too.

Special exhibitions—very elaborate in character—have been exchanged with Japan and Spain, to be shown in their national educational exhibits.

Aside from this purely educational aim of the Juniors, there is the practical part: the American Junior Red Cross has played as its contribution to happiness and good will among all children. In March, 1919 the American Junior Red Cross established a National Children's Fund, from which to help in the educational programs in the nations where the war wrought such havoc. On July 1, 1928, the American Juniors had raised and expended through this fund approximately $1,300,000. In its earlier days, the fund has aided in many nations, both through establishing schools and scholarships. With general rehabilitation, the American Juniors have been able to confine their assistance, with the exception of the Albanian Vocational School, to contributing to the work among children conducted by the League of Red Cross Societies.

As a practical demonstration of their friendliness for their little school fellows across the seas, the American Juniors in 1927 prepared 70,000 Christmas boxes, which were shipped to children in Europe and in our insular possessions. These contained such items as mouth organs, soaps, handkerchiefs, colors, books, tooth brushes, and always a letter of

A colt belonging to S. F. Oliff at the age of eight months weighed 615 pounds, having gained an average of three and one-half pounds daily from his birth.

Confederate veterans who attended the state reunion in Atlanta were J. B. Groover, J. T. Brannen, J. R. Hall, James Bland, T. A. Waters, E. D. Holland and John Cromley.

Miss Ruby Wood, of Pulaski, a student at the Statesboro high school, had an arm broken by a run-away horse. The run-away collided with W. B. Addison's wagon and threw him out on his head.

School items showed that the Theban society held a meeting. Those who had part on the program were George Donaldson, Charlie Franklin, Arthur Turner, Tom Moore, Jesse Johnston, Mack Lester, Arthur Morris, Clark Merrill, Paul Simmons, Will Barr, Fred Brannen, Ernest Smith and James Fordham. J. L. Renfro, superintendent of the school, made a talk to the society.

Christmas greeting. Touching and beautiful responses came to the American schools expressing thanks.

The Juniors, organized by school rooms all to themselves tasks such as sending flowers and fruits to their classmates who are ill; providing dolls and toys—many made by themselves in their classes in mechanics.

For crippled or ill children in local hospitals or institutions. In one city, broken toys were gathered up, local firemen were prevailed upon to mend them in their odd moments, and happy children in the orphanages received them from Santa Claus. In another, boys in the mechanical classes made 3,000 wooden toys, the girls in the sewing and cooking classes dressed the dolls and made cartons of candy, and Christmas became a great occasion in all orphanages nearby. Only a few instances out of many thousands, such as these, can be cited.

It is all service by the child to his community, his nation and the world of children. It has proved its value in the school from an educational point of view by vitally interesting pupils in world-wide affairs. In the community and nation it trains children to assume, early in life, a feeling of responsibility as little citizens.

The American Junior Red Cross is the child of the American Red Cross, which supports it from its annual membership roll. You will want to participate in this vital educational program for the youth of our land. When the American Red Cross chapter in your community asks you to enroll as a member, between Armistice Day and Thanksgiving Day, the opportunity will be open to you.

A STRANGE DEMOCRACY

That is a strange sort of democracy which finds it necessary to ride about the country with a Republican committee as a chaplaine.

And that is the kind of democracy that was brought to the voters of Bulloch county last Monday by the misbranded Democratic person-politician, Bascom Anthony. His body-guard and escort was Frank Durden, of Savannah, Republican elector for the First congressional district. At the same time the Reverend politician came, is not public information. He may have paid his own way and he may have even compensated the Republican leader for bringing him, but on this score there is at least reasonable suspicion. It is enough to state that Mr. Durden brought him to Statesboro, followed him into the court room, and vociferously led the applause at the dishing out of Rev. Anthony's brand of Democracy. It is certainly not unkind to assert that either Mr. Anthony or the sort of a Democrat or Mr. Durden is a queer king of a Republican. It is plain enough that a loyal and true Democrat would not reason along lines pleasing to a true and loyal Republican, as Rev. Mr. Anthony's appeal was pleasing to Mr. Durden.

It was a strange democracy that Mr. Anthony brought us Monday.

COUNTY AGENT'S NOTES

The regular co-operative hog sale will be held on Wednesday, Oct. 24, at the Central of Georgia pens, provided we have enough hogs here for a carload or two carloads before the sale. At two or three sales that we have held this fall we have had one and a half cars. This means that we have had to pay the freight on a half car each time. It can be readily seen that it is not economical to take care of expenses of the sale, and the freight that we have had to pay on the part carloads, that we are in the hole. We cannot afford to hold sales unless we have even carloads. For this reason we must have the hogs listed in advance. After a farmer lists his hogs he is expected to sell those hogs. We cannot afford to have a man list a number of hogs for sale and then sell the hogs elsewhere, and say nothing about it. It is absolutely up to the farmers of Bulloch county whether they sell or not. The hog market has declined faster than usual this fall, and a little earlier than usual. This has caused some dissatisfaction at co-operative sales. If one will notice the reports of sales at other points in the state, the Mr. Durden brought him to Statesboro, followed him into the court room, and vociferously led the applause at the dishing out of Rev. Anthony's brand of Democracy. It is certainly not unkind to assert that either Mr. Anthony or the sort of a Democrat or Mr. Durden is a queer king of a Republican. RAILROADS MUST MEET
DEMANDS OF FUTURE

That the railroads will remain the backbone of this country's transportation system is the assertion of John J. Pelley, president of the Central of Georgia Railway, in a statement published today. This will be the case, Mr. Pelley, regardless of the development of transportation, such as the waterways, bus or truck lines and the air carriers. He states that these can supplement but cannot replace the railroads.

"Advocates of other forms of transportation," he says, "are constantly making arguments for support and development of those other forms—bus or truck lines using public highways or boat lines using natural or dredged waterways—upon the plea that the railroads may prove unable to meet the transportation demands that will result from continued development of the United States. There is no ground for such a belief."

Mr. Pelley calls attention to the fact that the railroads are handling considerably less traffic than in their peak year of 1923 when freight shipments reached unprecedented figures. Great as was the traffic in that year, he says, the railroads could have handled even more with the same efficiency, general reliability and absence of car shortages as they should be.

Hereafter, instead of a charge of 10 cents per head, 1 per cent will be deducted on all sales. This will amount to about the same thing, but will be fairer to the man selling small or rough hogs. Don't forget the sale date, Wednesday, Oct. 24, and don't forget to list your hogs. In case there are not enough hogs for a carload, you will be notified that the sale is called off. And please do not bring hogs weighing less than 135 pounds to a co-operative sale, unless they are roughs. Three and four are too cheap to sell for slaughter hogs. WORLD'S GREATEST SHOW
AT SAVANNAH FAIR

YES, SIR, it's really true!

Meaning that a number heard sometime ago is now confirmed by the official announcement that the Ringling Bros and Barnum & Bailey Combined Shows will positively exhibit at Savannah fair on opening day, Monday, October 22.

At that time the world's first and only five ring circus will be within easy reach of local savant fans. With it will come Goliath, the monster sea elephant, the only one of his kind ever to be captured and exhibited alive and who will be the foremost of a menagerie composed of more than a thousand animals.

The big show is now a third larger than it was when it last visited this locality. Enormous new displays have been introduced such as ninety zebras, camels and horses performing at one time on a mammoth pedestal. On a similar series of circular raised platforms thirty-two of the shows forty-three elephants dance, run and perform in unison with the topmost of the ponderous actors twenty feet above the ground. Prior to this gigantic display five herds of elephants appear in the five separate rings. At another time the rings are given over to five companies of liberty horses. At still another juncture of the program two hundred of the show's 900 horses, each ridden by an expert, are seen in the brilliant maneuvers.

Of the sixteen hundred people carried on tour this season more than eight hundred are the world's foremost aerialists, bareback riders, ground and lofty gymnasts, high-wire men and super athletes. These are now seen in extensive groups and troupes each display led by its particular champions, a new method of presentation that is in keeping with the Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey 1927 plan of extending & acting in equal number over the entire length of the mammoth main tent. Little folks will be delighted to learn that the bringing of a score of European clowns to America has increased the funmakers to more than a hundred.

MAN SO NERVOUS GETS SORE WHEN SPOKEN TO

"It actually irritated me to have anyone talk to me. I was so nervous, Vinol ended this and I feel wonderful now."

Vinol is a compound of iron, phosphates, cod liver peptone, etc. The very first bottle makes you sleep better and have a BIG appetite. Nervous, easily tired people are surprised how QUICK the iron, phosphates, etc., give new life and pep. Vinol tastes delicious. W. H. ELLIS CO.

ROGERS

CLEANLINESS

No factor in the life of the business of a pure food distributor has stronger appeal than a spotless, clean store. Everybody—and especially ladies, who constitute 80 per cent of grocery shoppers—likes to step into a neat, orderly clean store. They better enjoy the food that comes from such a store, for they know it is clean and wholesome. It's stores of this kind that keep the public coming back daily into a Rogers store. Haven't you noticed it?

Worried A Lot

"I took Cardui at intervals for three years, and have been in good health since last fall," says Mrs. Noble J. Hayes, of Waterloo, S. C. "My improvement after taking a course of this medicine was really remarkable."

"I am much stronger and can accomplish so much more work now. My weight increased twenty pounds, and my c or is good. For a long time I had been feeling poorly. Some days I dragged around the house and had not enough energy to do my housework."

"I worried a lot about myself. I did not seem like myself, and my nerves were all on edge. I did not sleep well, and my appetite left me."

"I found Cardui to be an excellent tonic. After I had taken it a few weeks, I began to pick up and to gain in weight and strength."

To the 5000 who daily become owners of the new Ford car

THE service obligation of the Ford Motor Company and its dealer organization is now growing at the rate of 5000 cars a day. It is to these new car owners that this message is addressed.

The new Ford is a remarkably fine car for one that costs so little. It is simple in design, constructed of the finest materials, and built to unusually close measurements.

These are the reasons it performs so wonderfully. These are also the reasons its service requirements are so few and the up-keep cost so low.

When you receive your new car, the dealer will explain the simple little things that should be attended to at regular intervals to insure the best performance. He will also tell you something of his own facilities for doing this work promptly and at small cost.

With the purchase of your car, you are entitled to Free Inspection Service by your dealer at 500, 1000 and 1500 miles. This service is due you and we urge you to take full advantage of it. Proper care during this breaking-in period means a great deal to the life of your car.

Central of Georgia Discusses Railroads' Ability to Meet Future Transportation Demands

The all around excellence and dependability of railroad service are now generally admitted, and the public expects good railroad service as a matter of course. Advocates of other forms of transportation though frequently base their arguments for support and development of these other forms—bus and truck lines using public highways or boat lines using natural or dredged waterways—upon the plea that the railroads may prove unable to meet the increasing transportation demands that will result from continued development of the United States. There is no ground for such a belief.

In 1926 the railroads handled the greatest traffic in their history, and this with no serious tie-up of equipment or shortage of cars. Practically every shipper who needed a car or cars got what he wanted without delay, and loaded cars were moved promptly and quickly to destination. Despite their tremendous traffic, the railroads operated more efficiently than ever before, nor was their freight handling capacity reached. Great as was the volume of traffic, the railroads could have handled considerably more without any diminution of their efficiency.

Since 1926 the volume of traffic handled by the railroads has shown a substantial decline. Traffic for 1927 was considerably less than in 1926, and traffic for 1928 shows still further declines. The railroads are now handling considerably less freight than they did in their peak year of 1926. If the traffic were offered for handling, the railroads could not only attain but could exceed the efficiency they displayed in handling the record breaking traffic of 1926. So far as efficiency goes, the railroads are now making even better records than in 1926. With their present equipment and facilities the railroads could handle at least twenty per cent. more freight than they are now handling, and this just as efficiently as they are handling their present diminished volume of traffic. If sufficient capital is available, the railroads may be relied upon to keep their equipment and facilities ahead of demands likely to be made upon them.

The public is entitled to any form of transportation that it desires, or that meets a public need. Each form of transportation—the railroads, bus or truck lines, water lines and air lines—can be of public service. Under certain conditions each of these forms of transportation can be more efficient than any other form of transportation. But the public should not be misled into thinking that there is any vital necessity for artificial development of any of these forms because of imminent danger that the railroads may prove unable to meet this country's transportation demands.

No matter what development is achieved by the other forms, the railroads will remain the backbone of this country's transportation system. Water ways, bus or truck lines, as well as air lines, can supplement efficiently but cannot replace the railroads. If the railroads are allowed to earn a fair rate of return, a rate sufficiently low to enable them to attract capital in competition with other forms of investment, they will continue able to supply the kind of transportation that this country needs. The allowing of such a rate return, rather than the artificial development of competing forms of transportation, is the best insurance that can be taken out against a failure or breakdown of our transportation system.

Constructive criticism and suggestions are invited.

J. J. PELLEY,

President, Central of Georgia Railway Company.
